Cultural Center

The local government of Taichung, the third biggest city in Taiwan after Taipei and Kaohsiung, is planning a new cultural park in the Gateway City district. Taichung City Cultural Center, as the complex is called, will comprise a public library and a fine arts museum. For this purpose, the government organized an open, international, two-stage design competition, the first stage of which has been completed, leaving a short-list of five firms to compete in the second stage: Stücheli Architekten, Mass Studies, Eisenman Architects, Jean-Loup Baldacci and Sanaa. The winner will be announced in August. Shown here are three designs that failed to reach the second round.
